

About the author

Disclaimer

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

China's changing population

China's healthcare system and the need for reform

Healthcare reform in China

Implications of reforms for stakeholders

China's changing population

Summary

Introduction

Increasing population

Aging population

Change in therapeutic focus

The rise of the middle class and increase in spending power

Urbanization

City expansion in China

Maximizing the opportunity of smaller city markets

China's healthcare system and the need for reform

Summary

Overview

History of Chinese healthcare

Regulatory structure and government departments

The Ministry of Health

The State Food and Drug Administration

Ministry of Human Resources and Social Security

National Development and Reform Commission

Other healthcare related agencies

New drug regulation laws

New drug registration procedures

Drug recalls

Organization of healthcare and the hospital system

Urban healthcare

Rural healthcare

Differences in hospital healthcare

Urban healthcare and rural healthcare

Pricing and reimbursement in China

Approving drugs for reimbursement

Traditional Chinese Medicine

Healthcare reform in China

Summary

Universal medical insurance

- Basic Medical Insurance
- Urban Resident Basic Medical Insurance
- New Rural Cooperative Medical Insurance
- Private insurance
- Assessment of health insurance programs
- Drug pricing reform
- Essential Drug List
- The National Reimbursement Drug List
- Hospital reform
- Increasing the number of community health clinics
- Reform of hospital finance

Implications of reforms for stakeholders

- Summary
- Introduction
- Pharmaceutical companies
- Hospitals
  - Selected responses to three qualitative survey questions
  - Private hospital opportunities
- Contract research organizations
- Medical device companies
- Private health insurance companies
- Healthcare IT companies
- Assessment and conclusion

Appendix

- Scope
- Methodology
- Glossary/Abbreviations
- References
  - Company press releases
  - Informa products
- Questionnaire responses
  - Research procedure
  - Detailed questionnaire responses

TABLES

- Table: China's population composition and projections by age group
- Table: China's urban and rural population (m), 2000–50
- Table: Composition of the expenditure for public health in China, 2001–08
- Table: Evolution of social medical insurance in China
- Table: Overview of China's healthcare related agencies
- Table: Urban and rural levels of healthcare
- Table: Statistics on New Rural Cooperative Medical System, 2004–09

Table: Financing Structure of NRCMS in Xiangtan City (RMB), 2005–09
Table: Overview of government subsidised medical insurance programs
Table: Comparison of the top 10 international additions/removals of key drugs, 2004–09
Table: Utilization rate for community health centres, 2002–09
Table: Number of privately owned medical institutions in China, 2008
Table: Six hospital categories covered for the questionnaire

FIGURES

Figure: China's population growth rate, 1990–2010
Figure: China's population, 1990–2030
Figure: Diabetes prevalence in China, India, US, UK, and Japan, 2010
Figure: Average wage of employed persons in urban units in China, 1995–2009
Figure: China's middle class population increase, 2010–15
Figure: China's urban and rural population (m), 2000–50
Figure: Comparison of healthcare expenditure in the US and China
Figure: Composition of the expenditure for Public Health in China (2001–08)
Figure: Lists A and B on the NRDL
Figure: Repositioning of medical institutions
Figure: Decision criteria for pharmaceutical companies to seek listing on NRDL
Figure: Application and approval procedure for clinical trials
Figure: Private health insurance market opportunity in China ($bn), 2008–20